SUBURBAN ROMANCE

Richard Caliban's SUBURBAN ROMANCE is being given its World Premiere by the Back Alley Theatre. It is a simple, pleasant little tale of a suburban family, growing apart and coming together. It adds nothing new to the many similar plays before it. Director Allan Miller and his cast have presented it in a straightforward, honest but unexciting fashion. K. Callan and John Carter were the parents and Rapahel Sbarge and Largo Woodruff were the mildly troubled children. Rick Dean made an impression as the musician/boy-friend and Joe Ivy had a delightful time as the family dog, Duke. (Back Alley Theatre, 15231 Burbank Blvd. in Van Nuys. Thurs.-Sun. until March 18. 851-9750).
